Course Description and Purpose

Economics is the study of how individuals and societies make rational choices when confronted with scarce resources and an uncertain environment. As a science, economics provides a rigorous framework in which to organize observed economic phenomena so that we may come to some understanding of the world around us.

Microeconomics is concerned with how individuals and firms make decisions within the context of an isolated market. Principle of Microeconomics is an introductory course covering issues relating to individual economic units: namely, the individual consumer, the individual firm, the individual factors of production – land, labor, and capital. During this semester you will be introduced to the mechanics of a market economy. You will see how and why markets may "work" well and not so well. You will also see the impact of government intervention on market processes. Topics covered include price theory, price determination through equilibrium, supply and demand, analysis of consumer demand, utility theory and marginal utility, consumer equilibrium, analysis of supply, the theory of production, pricing in perfectly and imperfectly competitive markets, types of imperfect competition.

Course Goals

Religious Observance Policy

Accommodations will be made for students who wish to observe their religious holidays. Students should make their requests known at the beginning of the semester – during the first week of classes.

Proctored Exam Policy

There are no proctored exams in this course.

Assignments

Group Assignments

The purpose of the group assignments is to simulate a typical classroom activity and to frame and promote collaborative learning.

Group Dynamics

Each student will be assigned to work on the assignments with a group of 3-6 students, depending on class size. In order to successfully complete the assignment, which will allow you to work through the definitions and concepts you will learn in the chapters, every group member is responsible for reading the chapters in the textbook and watching the supplemental videos. All group members are expected to contribute equally to answering the questions. Everyone is to agree upon how many questions each one will answer or how you can collaborate on computing and reporting the answers. If there are any issues with group dynamics, please immediately send me a private Canvas Inbox message and I will address this. Every group will appoint group members to the posts outlined in the assignment by Thursday of the 2nd week of class. Posts should alternate for every module assignment

Instructions:

Answer all of the questions in the assignment. Show all your reasoning, work, steps, methodologies, tables, and graphs used to get your answers in order to get full credit. Failure to follow the directions may result in deductions to your grade. Each successfully and accurately completed the assignment submitted on time is worth 100 points. Upload your finished document file into the appropriate assignment in Canvas (only .doc, .docx, and .pdf files will be accepted). Please ensure that your file has uploaded correctly before the deadline otherwise your assignment will be considered missing, and a grade of “0” will be applied. There will be a 5% penalty for every day an assignment is submitted late. The assignments will no longer be accepted after 3 days past the due date. Every assignment will specify a due date and a close date.

Extra Credit

Extra credit may be given at the discretion of the professor but is not guaranteed. Any individual solicitations for extra points or assignments to boost grades by any means will be immediately denied. The opportunity for any extra points must be given to the entire class.
